While a booze-filled bachelorette-party weekend with girlfriends may appeal to many brides, others are looking for a more low-key wellness getaway. Destination spas, like Canyon Ranch and Cal-a-Vie, have seen an increase in the number of brides swapping a traditional bachelorette party for a wellness weekend. We totally get it: Wedding planning can be stressful. And a few days of quality R&R is a great way to unwind and bond with your bridesmaids.

"Brides want to look and feel their best for their wedding—and a spa destination is the perfect way to do that. Everyone will be well rested, healthier, and more radiant after a wellness weekend—not to mention it's a great bonding experience for girlfriends," says Cindy Present, fitness and activities director at Lake Austin Spa Resort in Austin, Texas.

"We have noticed that brides are looking to make lasting memories while minimizing the stress that often comes along with the process. As women become more in tune with healthier lifestyle choices, they are looking beyond traditional bachelorette parties and finding ways to restore and rejuvenate mind, body, and soul leading up to the big day," says Donna Jacobs, life-management practitioner at Canyon Ranch in Lenox, Massachusetts.
